

ABSTRACT

In a variable displacement hydraulic pump having a housing with a multiplicity of interconnected surfaces, including opposed end surfaces and intermediate side surfaces, the improvement comprising the location of at least one case drain orifice in each of a plurality of differing ones of the surfaces in a manner such that at least one of the orifices is located in the vicinity of the top surface of the housing in any spatial orientation of the housing.